

Table of Contents

Introduction	3
Unit 1: Afraid	7
Unit 2: Angry	17
Unit 3: Anxious	27
Unit 4: Bored	37
Unit 5: Calm	47
Unit 6: Confident	57
Unit 7: Disappointed	67
Unit 8: Disgusted	77
Unit 9: Embarrassed	87
Unit 10: Excited	97
Unit 11: Frustrated	107
Unit 12: Happy	117
Unit 13: Jealous	127
Unit 14: Left Out	137
Unit 15: Sad	147
Unit 16: Shy	157
Unit 17: All the Feelings	167

Introduction

What Is Social-Emotional Learning?

Social-Emotional Learning (SEL) helps students recognize and understand their emotions, cope with emotional situations, and develop empathy. These skills are crucial to students' development and can help them navigate responsible decision-making for the rest of their lives.

According to the Collaborative for Academic, Social, and Emotional Learning (CASEL), SEL involves five areas of competency:

- ✦ Self-Awareness—knowing your own emotions
- ✦ Social Awareness—understanding others' emotions and dealing with social situations
- ✦ Self-Management—regulating your own emotions
- ✦ Responsible Decision Making—solving problems and having accountability
- ✦ Relationship Skills—establishing relationships and communicating with others

While SEL has become more widely discussed recently, the concept dates back to research that began in the early 1960s. Various studies over the years have found that SEL has proven to help students with:

- ✦ Goal setting and accomplishment
- ✦ Self-assessment and self-control
- ✦ Decreasing physical aggression
- ✦ Improving academic proficiency

When students learn how to cope with their emotions, they are better able to give and receive feedback, bounce back from disappointments, and focus when they need to—all of which can help them excel academically. An emotionally well-adjusted student is a successful student.

Beyond helping students perform better academically, learning social-emotional skills early in life can help students thrive throughout their lives. SEL teaches students valuable qualities that will benefit them in their future jobs, academics, and personal pursuits.

Daily Emotional Reflections

Why start the day with SEL? Many successful people start their day with mindfulness: meditation, daily journaling, morning affirmations, etc. That's because centering yourself first thing in the morning gets you focused and ready to tackle whatever your day has in store.

For students, taking a few moments each morning to check in on how they're feeling can start a habit that they can build on for the rest of their lives.

Each of the exercises in this book is designed to help students spend a few moments in the morning to check in with themselves and to learn a little bit about the spectrum of human emotions.

When your students start their day with emotional awareness, they will be more likely to carry that awareness with them throughout the day, helping them to make good choices and have empathy both inside and outside of your classroom.

How to Use This Book — The Emotions —

Each of the first sixteen units explores a different emotion, with two activities each devoted to these fundamental aspects of SEL:

✦ Defining the Emotion

Explaining what the emotion is; asking students to reflect on what they already know about it

✦ Identifying the Emotion in Others

Asking students to think about what the emotion looks like in other people; helping to develop empathy

✦ Identifying the Emotion in Self

Detecting how the emotion looks and feels in their own experience; developing self-awareness and self-assessment

✦ Strategies for Dealing with the Emotion

Exploring different coping strategies for the emotion; helping to develop self-regulation and encouraging healthy social interactions

✦ Putting It All Together

Reflecting on what they have discovered about the emotion; exploring what strategies they will try in the future

Note: You don't have to work through this book in order; you can start or end with any emotion.

Introduction (cont.)

The final unit, All the Feelings, is intended for students to experience once they have learned about all of the different emotions. This unit gives them a chance to reflect on how the different emotions can complement and conflict with one another and offers ideas on how to manage a mix of feelings.

— The Emojis —

In today's social world, most students are very familiar with emojis and the feelings they represent. In this book, they are presented as a simple, visual way for students to identify with different feelings.

In each unit, there are at least two activities that start with an emoji emotional check-in. This is a great and simple way for students to check in with their own feelings first thing.

How do you feel today? Circle each face that matches your feelings. Or draw your own.

Joyful

Disappointed

Frustrated

Calm

— Mindful Moments & Yoga Breaks —

Each unit also offers a meditation suggestion and a breakdown of a simple yoga pose that complements the emotion featured in that unit. Breathing and movement exercises could be done individually or throughout the week by the entire class.

— Fun Facts, Quotes, & Tips —

Throughout the book, you will also find fun facts, quotes, and quick tips about the featured emotion of the unit. These can be interesting discussion starters as you segue into the next part of your lesson plan.

Creating a Kind Classroom

A kind and welcoming classroom is an ideal place for students to learn and discover more about their feelings.

It's important that your students feel encouraged to discuss feelings when they come up, and that beyond these morning exercises, your classroom is a safe place for them to feel all of their emotions.

Here are some other ideas and activities to expand your SEL teachings beyond morning reflections:

- ✦ Create a Mindfulness or Calm-Down Corner that is a quiet space for students to reflect; a few pillows and a yoga mat can create a welcoming place for breathing or journaling.
- ✦ Watch the movie Inside Out as a class, and invite a discussion afterward about the emotions featured in the film.
- ✦ Incorporate yoga and/or breathing and meditation as part of your daily or weekly lessons, maybe creating regular events like Meditation Monday or Yoga Friday.
- ✦ Model good emotional behavior—talk about how you're feeling, and point out the feelings and emotions of characters in stories featured in your class.
- ✦ Play a feelings game such as Emotional Charades, in which students are given an emotion to act out for others.
- ✦ Create a classroom poster of coping activities that students can choose from when their emotions are distracting them from focusing.
- ✦ Have the class make a collage of positive affirmations that can be referred to throughout the year as needed.
- ✦ Encourage and reward random acts of kindness both inside and outside of the classroom.

“There's no ‘should’ or ‘should not’ when it comes to having feelings. They're part of who we are and their origins are beyond our control. When we can believe that, we may find it easier to make constructive choices about what to do with those feelings.”
—Fred Rogers

Name: _____ Date: _____

What does it mean to feel bored?

When we say, “I’m bored,” we’re saying that we’ve run out of ideas of what to do next.

But sometimes boredom is hiding another feeling underneath that we just don’t want to deal with. Our brain says, “this is boring,” so we can stop thinking about that thing that is upsetting and find something else to do.

What color would you choose for boredom? Color in the circle with that color. Then, draw a picture about feeling bored using only that color.

What do you usually do when you feel bored? _____

Next time you’re feeling bored, try being curious instead. When you’re curious, you are full of wonder about everything around you. What can you see around you? What can you hear? What amazing things can you notice about the world around you?

Name: _____ Date: _____

Boredom Busted

When you're feeling bored, it is the perfect time to challenge yourself to think up something fun to do. Is there a new skill you'd like to learn? Something creative you'd like to make? Fill in the blanks below, and then write in some other things you could do when you're feeling bored.

When I'm bored, I could...

- Call a friend. I'd call _____ and we would talk about _____.
- Build a _____ that I would use to _____.
- Read about _____ because I've always wanted to know more about _____.
- Draw or paint a _____ and then a _____.
- Write a story about _____, _____, and _____.
- Invent a _____, the most amazing thing ever because it solves this problem: _____.
- Learn to play a musical instrument (_____) so I could play this song: _____.
- Bake something special (_____) for _____.
- Volunteer to help _____ with _____.
- Learn how to _____ so I can _____.
- Go outside and _____.

Some other things I can do when I'm bored: _____

Name: _____ Date: _____

Big Dreams

Feeling bored? Practice some daydreaming instead.

Daydreaming is a great way to think about big ideas and the future too. It's like dreaming, but you're still awake. Let your mind wander, and be creative!

Complete the sentences to start your daydreams.

If I could have one wish come true, it would be...

Someday, I want to...

When I grow up, I want to...

If I could change anything, I would...

“You get ideas from daydreaming. You get ideas from being bored. You get ideas all the time.”—Neil Gaiman